Buy Pure Candy

Know that the candy you eat is pure. It should be of as good a quality as any other article that you eat.

When you buy candy from here you are assured that it is pure in every particular. Our candy maker refuses to work with any other than the very best grade of ingredients, claiming that he cannot do justice to his work unless he has the best materials with which to work.

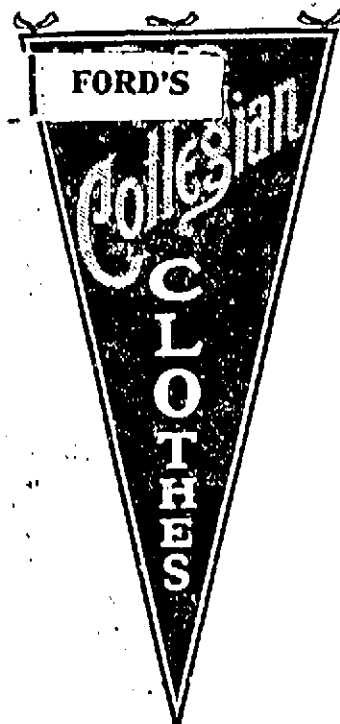

Care is exercised in our sanitary "Pure White" candy kitchen to have everything clean and sanitary. This kitchen is always open to your inspection. When you have leisure time drop in and see how the candies you eat are made. Then, too, you'll have personal knowledge that our candies are PURE.

The word "preface" used in the beginning of books was originally a word of welcome to a meal, and was equivalent to "Much good may it do you."

WELL KNOWN EDGERTON MAN DIED SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Otto Stricker Passed Away After Eight Months' Illness of Tuberculosis of the Lungs.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Nov. 21.—Otto Stricker, a popular Edgerton young man, died Saturday afternoon at the home of his mother in this city of tuberculosis of the lungs, with which he has been afflicted for the past eight months. Although in a serious condition he kept up spirits until the last. The deceased was a cigar maker by trade, which he followed for the past fourteen years, although he abandoned work last April. For ten years he was a member of the Edgerton concert band, playing clarinet, and also belonged to the Edgerton orchestra. He was born here June 30, 1874. Besides the mother, Mrs. William Stricker, four sons and one daughter survive. They are: Richard, Gust, William and Clarence, and Mrs. Rosa Westcott, all of whom reside in this city. Funeral services will take place Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at the German Lutheran church, to be conducted by Rev. J. C. Spillmann.

Local News.
The Edgerton chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will have their annual past matron's meeting Tuesday evening, Nov. 22. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m., after which a program will follow.
Mrs. Gertrude Pomeroy has departed for Boulder, Colo., where she will spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. F. P. Grove.
Miss Rosa Harrington was home over Sunday from her school duties in the Paul district in the vicinity of Milton Junction.

LIMA.
Lima, Nov. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Barker and daughter left on Thursday for California. They expect to spend at least a year in Los Angeles. Mrs. Martin Gould is with relatives in Richmond Center for a couple of weeks.

Mrs. Will Johnson and Irving of Fairfield, visited relatives here from Friday to Sunday.

Miss Lucy Hall of Milton spent part of last week with her cousin, Mrs. B. Ehrlich.

Mrs. Franklin Gould went to Milwaukee Monday to spend a couple of weeks with her son, Anson.

Mrs. E. Seiden is home from a ten days' visit with her parents in Cambridge.

Fire burned the barn on the premises of Nate Boyd to the ground on Friday evening. It is not known how the fire originated, but a few of the chickens are to be found either alive or in the ruins. It seems quite reasonable that chicken thieves are responsible. The property was insured in the home company.

Frank Powers and family were up from Milton Junction Sunday.

ROCK.
Rock, Nov. 21.—Fred Uehling went to Beloit today to buy a couple of gasoline engines.

Miss Tillie Garske of Afton has been the guest of her brother the past week.

Andrew Powell and family have moved to Montana to make their future home.

Our students in the city schools will spend Thanksgiving vacation at home.

Misses Dawson and Dillon of Janesville were the guest of Mr. James Dillon Friday.

Mrs. James Reed of Janesville, visited relatives in this vicinity last week.

Mrs. Sarah Davis of Beloit was a week end visitor at Mrs. Robert Kennedy's.

BROADHEAD.
Broadhead, Nov. 21.—J. J. Danner went to Madison Saturday on a business trip.

Miss Nellie Bartlett took her departure on Saturday for Freeport where she will keep house with her father who has secured a position there.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Baker have located in Davis, Illinois, where Mr. Baker is engaged in selling oil for the Pennsylvania Oil Company.

Miss Allie Clifford of Monroe, came to Broadhead on Saturday to visit relatives.

The Junior Ladies' Society will meet on Friday evening with Mrs. M. Bright. They will hold their annual fair and chicken pie dinner on December tenth.

Rev. George Hunt of the Presbyterian church will preach the Thanksgiving sermon on Thursday evening in the M. E. church. All are invited to attend.

The chicken pie dinner given by the W. C. T. U. in Broughton's Annex on Saturday, was attended by a large number. The society cleared about $50.00.

FORMER RESIDENT OF KOSHKONONG PASSED AWAY

Mrs. J. W. Wentworth Died at Her Home at Ft. Atkinson Last Wednesday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Koshkonong, Nov. 21.—Mrs. J. W. Wentworth died at her home at Ft. Atkinson Wednesday morning, Nov. 9, of pneumonia after a few days' illness. Funeral services were held from the house Friday afternoon at 2:30, conducted by Rev. Henry Hawley, assisted by Rev. E. W. Mager. Mrs. Wentworth was at one time a resident of this place where they owned the farm now occupied by F. Gray. Mr. Wentworth was postmaster and depot agent during their residence here. She leaves to mourn her death three sisters, and two brothers, Mrs. James Stevens of Ft. Atkinson, Mrs. Mont. Steep, Mrs. William Lyons, and T. D. Hasset of this place, and N. Hasset of Dakota, and also one son with whom she made her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugot of Janesville visited the sister, Mrs. E. Hall last week.

D. Brown and son, Kenneth, spent Saturday and Sunday on Rock Prairie with his mother, Mrs. Helen Brown.

The M. E. society which was to be held at the M. E. Parsonage at Milton Jet, Thursday, was postponed until after Thanksgiving.

George Barnhart shredded corn at Scott Robinson's Saturday and Bert Holt with his gasoline outfit shredded for Thomas Haight.

There will be no school on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Harless of Janesville spent Sunday with relatives here.

BIG GATHERING AT SAN ANTONIO

Twenty-first Annual Meeting of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress Opened Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 21.—The twenty-first annual meeting of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress has attracted to San Antonio the largest gathering of distinguished men ever assembled here. Page after page of the registers at the leading hotels are filled today with the names of United States senators, governors of states, diplomats, financiers, railroad officials and other persons of prominence in public affairs and in the world of commerce and industry.

Preceded by an elaborate banquet tonight at which William J. Bryan, Senator Joseph W. Bailey and other men of wide note are to speak, the regular sessions of the congress will begin tomorrow morning and continue until Friday. J. W. Fleming of Kansas City, chairman of the executive committee, estimates that no fewer than 1,500 delegates will be present when the gathering is called to order. Not only will every state west of the Mississippi have a large delegation on hand, but the East also will be better represented numerically than at any previous session of the congress.

The program is believed to be the best ever prepared for a meeting of the organization. Both in the variety and importance of the subjects to be discussed and in the prominence of the speakers to be heard the session promises to eclipse all former meetings of the congress.

The promotion of closer trade relations between the United States and the republics to the South will be one of the most important subjects considered at the meeting. Representatives of the State Department and the Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington will be among the speakers and it is expected that eminent representatives of Mexico and Central and South America will present their views.

Other subjects slated for discussion during the four days' session include the improvement of inland waterways and harbors, Pan-American trade and the Panama canal, the reclamation of lands by irrigation and drainage, merchant marine, insurance, interstate commerce, the conservation of natural resources, the development of Alaska, and the parcels post. Delegations of influential business men from San Francisco and New Orleans are here to urge the claims of their respective cities as sites for the proposed Panama exposition of 1915.

Thursday has been set aside as "Governors' Day" on the program of the congress, and it is expected that the chief executives of Nebraska, Missouri, Texas, Colorado and a number of other states of the West and Southwest will address the gathering. Prominent among other speakers to be heard at the several sessions are Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Secretary of State Knox, William J. Bryan of Nebraska, Governor Campbell of Texas, John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American Republics; F. H. Newell, director of the United States reclamation service; B. F. Youdum of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad; and Judge H. S. Lovett, chairman of the executive committee of the Union Pacific railroad.

To Buy a Piano For His Little Girl

All pianos sounded alike to him and he believed that any sort of a cheap piano was good enough for a beginner, and the cheapest teacher obtainable was all right to lay the musical foundation.

Then he decided to apprentice his son to the carpenter's trade, so he went to a junk yard and bought some old worn-out tools and handed them to his son, saying, "These are good enough for a beginner."

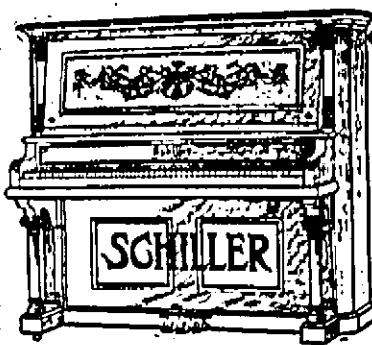

Comment seems unnecessary but we might add that piano junk is cheap and can be purchased at a low price any time but the intending purchaser should ask himself seriously, "Will it pay me to attempt to lay a musical foundation for my family with such stuff as 'this'?"

This was more of a concession than would be granted on political questions, for the East controlled the important committees in both houses of congress, and the West has long been a spectator, as was apparent when the tariff was under discussion a year ago.

But conditions have changed, and today every New England manufacturer of any importance has men on the road, and the most prolific field is in the West.

More radical changes have occurred in the political arena, and for the first time in history the West is on the map, and but for the fact that the democratic party will control the new house of representatives, the West would dominate. As it is, honors will be divided between the West and South.

The West knows the East much better than the East knows the West. The flow of blood have kept the West in touch with the old homeland, but in spite of the growth of the great eastern centers of population the West is making more rapid strides.

There should be no dividing line between these two great sections, for interests are mutual. The army of tollers in the shops and factories of New England are dependent for work and wage upon their brother tollers in the larger field of agriculture.

When the West is prosperous the East shares in prosperity. This fact is sometimes overlooked, in discussing the high cost of living, and people sigh for the good old days of ten cent corn and bacon.

We had some of these good old days in the 30's, when corn was the popular fuel in Iowa and Kansas and Illinois was the principle occupation throughout the manufacturing districts.

The western farmer who sold 600 bushels of corn for $60, in 1896, received $420 for the same number of bushels last year, an advance of 600 per cent, yet everybody was busy and prosperous and nobody accused the farmer of being a rival of the Standard Oil company as a dividend producer.

The West needs the shoes, the cotton cloth, and a thousand other things produced in the East, and it is a liberal consumer when harvests are good, and prices high.

The East needs the patronage of this great home market to keep the wheels in motion. There is no rivalry and there should be no snobishness.

GOOD ROADS.

The current number of "Good Roads," a magazine published in New York, and devoted to roads and streets, contains a very interesting illustrated article on "Highway Work in Wisconsin," written by Arthur H. Hirst, highway engineer Wisconsin Geological Natural History Survey.

This article covers the history of what has been done along the line of intelligent road building in the state since the inception of the movement in 1907, when the legislature appropriated $10,000 to aid in the work.

This money, with other small appropriations which have followed, has been spent for educational work, and as a result, twenty counties are now organized, with a highway county commissioner in charge. Many of the surveys are made by the state department, and the constitutional amendment authorizing state aid, passed almost unanimously in 1908, will likely become a law at the next session of the legislature.

Fifteen counties in the state now own steam rollers, and stone and gravel is so abundant, and so evenly distributed, that the average cost per mile for good macadam roads is less than half the cost in many other states.

Wisconsin has 65,000 miles of roads and about 8,000 miles have been stoned or gravelled. In some localities the split-log drag is used spontaneously, but with less success than in the prairie states.

When the automobile becomes the popular farm vehicle, as it has in Kansas, where every third farmer has one, the good roads question will receive new impetus. In the meantime, Wisconsin has established a record for intelligent road work, and under the wise supervision of the new commissioner, S. S. Jones of Clinton, the next three years will show marked results.

The day has passed when the farmer goes out in front of his place and tears up the dirt for amusement and exercise. If a city man should adopt the same policy he would be arrested for violation of law.

The fact is now generally recognized that the public highway is public property whether in the country or city, and the equally important fact, that street and road building is a science, also commands attention.

A better day has dawned, and when the country roads become boulevards, as they will in time, life will take on added charm, and country life be more attractive.

"Good Roads," by the way, is a monthly magazine published at 150 Nassau street, New York, at the modest price of one dollar per year. It should be in the hands of every man who is interested in good roads and streets.

TOLSTOI.

Tolstol, the great Russian author, was the most unique character of his day and generation. Just what motives prompted him to forsake home, fame and fortune, at a time when he was on the crest of the wave, may never be known, but he was a friend of the toiling masses and possessed a passion to emulate the character of the Master.

His creed was broader than the creed of any church, and his patriotism recognized all men as brothers, of whatever nationality. The confines of his church and his nation, were too narrow to satisfy his beliefs, and so he made enemies in both, but his writings will live and his memory will be revered wherever his name was known.

He died in obscurity at a little way station, a voluntary exile from his land and people.

The people of Eau Claire are highly pleased over the success of the commission plan of government, adopted last spring, and claim that if the question was resubmitted today 90 per cent of the voters would favor it. Janesville lost her opportunity. If the men who opposed the movement on technical grounds, will draft a manifesto that they will support, the city will adopt it, at any time. Compulsion rule has come to stay.

The aldermen will meet tonight, in special session, to consider the question of taxes. If wise, they will think twice, and then think again, before voting to employ outside talent to do the work of the home assessor.

USE WOMEN AS INSPECTORS

In Certain Lines Railroads Find That They Do Better Work Than Men.

Every railroad that makes a specialty of fine trains and caters to wealthy patronage must take great care that a high standard of service be maintained. The best of everything in parlor and dining car must be provided for a class of travelers who have the money to pay for luxuries, and in order to do this, close supervision is required, and the officials of such roads have learned that women make the very best inspectors for this class of work.

The type of woman that makes the greatest success is the one who is used to good things herself, and so can order the most expensive meal and know if it is served correctly. But these women are hard to find. Once found, they have the "softest" job going. Three times a day they are required to enter the dining car and order a report that will tax the waiter's ability to serve correctly and the pantry to supply.

All through the dinner the inspector notes the tablecloth, whether it be white or soiled. She makes a note of the fact if the waiter is impudent or surly, taking his number. If the food is insufficient or poorly served, on picked dishes her feminine mind makes a mental notation of it. If the silver is not clean, the carpet dirty, the water warm, or a hundred other things, who is supposed to correct them all in their memory? Well, she embeds them in a written report. The same rigid inspection of the parlor car is another of her duties, and incidentally while doing both she must look out for grafting on the part of the employees, waiters in particular.

The woman who does this kind of work may be either young or old, but she must be refined and have the appearance of being an old traveler. A woman who is traveling for pleasure is usually the pose adopted. On each trip she makes an inspection of as many tables and as many waiters as she can without arousing suspicion. —Workers' Magazine.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

GOOD READING

The wise men choose a lot of books, and say to us: "Read this, gadzooks! Pass up the cheap and dizzy rot, and read some dope that hits the spot! These dreary volumes represent the life of success, nobly spent! The richest thought that time conceals; in this you'll find the poet's spirit; in this old Darwin ranks a hit; in this Lord Bacon throws a fit; with these ten books you do not need another; I like to send such books as these when I am sitting 'neath the trees, where I can see and cry: 'It takes good books to please that guy.' But when I'm reading in my den, fatigued by stunts with fountain pen, I get some good rip-roaring yarn of plume gold in gloomy turn, some tales that rock of blood and grime, and kingly mads and dead men's bones. Those volumes full of precious thought may lie around the house and rot."

Heart to Heart

Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A SUCCESSFUL LIFE.

"We want to hear less of the man who began poor and amassed riches," observes a modern philosopher, "and more about the man who lived unsullied, though-died poor."

And therefore the short and simple annals of a man who lived an honest life and died a poor man:

He never aspired to be rich, and to be rich you must aspire. He was not built to make money. You couldn't have passed laws enough to make him rich, while money just naturally stuck to his neighbor's fingers, and you could not have made laws enough to keep the neighbor from getting rich.

This man asked of the world only a decent living, his own rooftop and good health.

His utmost earnings in any year did not exceed $1,000, and many years it was less.

Yet out of his savings he paid for his home. He kept his children in school. Each of them was graduated from the high school. After that if one wished to go to college he worked his own way—which was better for him.

This man was honorable in all his dealings. The thought of dishonesty never suggested itself. He paid his modest debts. He worked hard, and he spent little for luxuries.

He helped his fellows whenever he could. He was a good neighbor. He was never heard to complain of his lot. He got what he asked, a fair chance, and was satisfied.

Never did he knowingly commit a wrong against man, woman or child. He laughed often and he loved much. And when he died men said of him, "He was an honest man and a good citizen."

That is all.

Nothing startling in the story, nothing in the even tenor of that life to exploit. He "lived unsullied and died poor."

Whose life was this?

It was a life typical of the average man's life.

And was it "successful?"

Yes. Notably yes.

Success is a comparative term. If the accumulation of money is to be called success, you must ask: "How did the man get it?" If he got it honestly, his success is ignoble.

IGNOBLE SUCCESS is only SUCCESSFUL SUCCESS—real success—is NOBLE success.

Revenue for Railroads.

It is estimated that the railroads of the United States will transport 100,000 carloads of automobiles this year, earning thereby $6,000,000 to partially counteract the loss in passenger fares.

That bride calls her husband "Sugar."

"Well, that is a good name for him."

"A good name?"

"Sure; he was gritty to marry her."

USE WOMEN AS INSPECTORS

In Certain Lines Railroads Find That They Do Better Work Than Men.

Every railroad that makes a specialty of fine trains and caters to wealthy patronage must take great care that a high standard of service be maintained. The best of everything in parlor and dining car must be provided for a class of travelers who have the money to pay for luxuries, and in order to do this, close supervision is required, and the officials of such roads have learned that women make the very best inspectors for this class of work.

The type of woman that makes the greatest success is the one who is used to good things herself, and so can order the most expensive meal and know if it is served correctly. But these women are hard to find. Once found, they have the "softest" job going. Three times a day they are required to enter the dining car and order a report that will tax the waiter's ability to serve correctly and the pantry to supply.

All through the dinner the inspector notes the tablecloth, whether it be white or soiled. She makes a note of the fact if the waiter is impudent or surly, taking his number. If the food is insufficient or poorly served, on picked dishes her feminine mind makes a mental notation of it. If the silver is not clean, the carpet dirty, the water warm, or a hundred other things, who is supposed to correct them all in their memory? Well, she embeds them in a written report. The same rigid inspection of the parlor car is another of her duties, and incidentally while doing both she must look out for grafting on the part of the employees, waiters in particular.

The woman who does this kind of work may be either young or old, but she must be refined and have the appearance of being an old traveler. A woman who is traveling for pleasure is usually the pose adopted. On each trip she makes an inspection of as many tables and as many waiters as she can without arousing suspicion. —Workers' Magazine.

Painless Dentistry

My Painless work is reaching out tremendously among the neighboring cities. Just for illustration, on last Saturday I had patients from Afton, Evansville, Portville and two from Clinton, one from Minnesota, besides several from 4 to 8 miles on either side of town.

Today I had one from Montana who waited till on a visit here before having her dental work done. I also extracted two teeth for a third patient just now who—like all the rest—said, "Dr. Richards, you never hurt a bit."

Try me for your own work.

COMMON COUNCIL'S ADJOURNED SESSION

Proposition of Workman & Higgs, Tax Experts, Will Be Disposed of This Evening.

At half past seven o'clock this evening the common council will meet in adjourned session to take up the proposition of Workman & Higgs, tax experts, to gather tribute on sequestered personal property outside the state on 25% per cent commission basis. Mayor Carlo has refused to sign the proposed contract and the aldermen are expected to decide once and for all whether they are going to do about it. It will probably be a good sized rally at the meeting and some interesting developments are to be anticipated.

The Title Guaranty & Surety Co., which furnishes the bond of City Treasurer James Fathers has communicated with its local agent asking that the attention of the council be called to the fact that the four Janesville bonds designated as depositables must renew the bonds which they furnished two years ago. Mayor Carlo and City Treasurer Fathers will report that the issues of city improvement bonds on Nov. 7 and also the sale of the $3,281.58 South Main st. bonds on Nov. 19, to the Rock County National bank at a premium of $46.30.

Superior E. Dally's report of the stone crusher will show a total output of 7,084 yards for the year. It will also state that there are 260 yards in the bin 14 yards on the grounds and there remains on hand 300 feet of holes drilled and ready to be blown out.

The Crank Brewing Co. will petition for permission to transfer a license for the saloon at 301 West Milwaukee street to George Hunt.

DEFECTIVE CARS TAKEN FROM TRAINS

State Car Inspector Orders Twenty-Eight Freight Cars Removed From Two C. & N. W. Trains.

State Inspector of cars Morrill was in the city Saturday inspecting cars at the local yards of both roads inspecting both freight and passenger cars. The inspector is empowered to order out of service all cars which he finds defective and if the company fails to comply with his order he can bring them into court. At the South Janesville yards of the Northwestern road, it is reported that nineteen cars in bad order were removed from a south-bound freight train at his direction and nine cars were removed from train No. 391 on the Northern Wisconsin division. He also inspected cars at the St. Paul yards, but as far as can be learned, could make no complaint.

SATURDAY NIGHT DRUNKS IN COURT THIS MORNING.

Ole Olson, Pleaded "Not Guilty" but Was Convicted After a Very Brief Trial.

Five offenders who were arrested for drunkenness Saturday evening appeared in municipal court this morning and all but Ole Olson pleaded guilty. The latter was convicted after a trial lasting but a few minutes and being unable to pay a fine and costs amounting to $5, went to jail for eight days. Nicholas Murray paid $5. Ole Walkley could not meet his assessment of $4 and went to the battle for 6 days. John Millay occupied a three day sentence by taking the pledge for one year. Leo Rooney made arrangements to pay four dollars.

FIND BODY OF MAN DEAD MANY MONTHS

Small Boys Hunting Discover Corpse in the Ruckus. Other Accidents.

Arbor Lake, Wis., Nov. 21.—Small boys tramping rabbits found the body of an unknown man in a millow near Tomahawk Lake. He evidently had not died several months ago as the body was badly putrified. Persons from different parts of the state have been unable to identify the corpse.

Hunter Wounded.

Mequon, Wis., Nov. 21.—James Sharp, 18, son of the chief of the Ashland fire department, was wounded while deer hunting near here. He received two bullet wounds in the arm and one in the shoulder. He walked twelve miles toward Ashland, but fainted on the way. He was traced by blood and found by a searching party who took him to his home.

Shot in Stomach.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Nov. 21.—Horan Stevens of Madison was accidentally shot in the stomach Sunday at Winter by his brother, while a party of hunters were practicing with a revolver. The victim is barely alive.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Hannah McLaughlin.
Friends and relatives of Mrs. Hannah McLaughlin gathered this morning to pay their last and tributes of love and respect to the memory of the deceased. Services were held at nine o'clock at St. Mary's church, Fr. W. A. Goshel officiating. A bounteous number of handsome floral offerings showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held. The pallbearers were John Cullen, Edward Smith, Douglas King, and Edward Gillespie. The remains were interred in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Olivia P. White.
Mrs. Olivia P. White, aged seventy-seven years, passed away today at her home on Pleasant street. Mrs. White was born in New Hampshire, August 15, 1823, and grew to womanhood there. In 1851 she was married to James White of Locks, Pa., and being left a widow four years later, came west. She has resided in Janesville about thirty years. The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the Cargill Memorial Methodist church, Rev. Williams officiating. Burial will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

IX.—Sleeping For Health

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

SLEEP, thou repose of all things, Sleep, thou gentlest of the duties, thou peace of the mind, from which care flies; who dost soothe the hearts of men wearied of the toils of the day and refresh them for labor.

Thus spoke Orin about the year 10 B. C. Since then little has been added to our knowledge of the actual mechanism of sleep. Psychologists and physiologists have their theories, but as it is difficult to put the sleeping brain under the microscope the "mystery of folded sleep" is still a mystery.

CHIEF SLEEPING PORCH.
A temporary sleeping porch outside a window, supported by braces set at an angle and protected by an awning, may be built at a cost of a few dollars.

brain cells communicate are retracted during sleep, thus withdrawing the brain from outside stimulation.

It is conceivable that if all our senses by which we communicate with the external world were paralyzed sleep would automatically follow. For example, suppose complete paralysis of all sensory nerves except those of one eye existed. By closing this the patient would at once be put to sleep.

Another theory assumes that the center—the vaso motor nerve center at the base of the brain—which controls the blood vessels and equalizes the circulation of the blood throughout the body, becomes fatigued, resulting in a dilation of the arteries of the body and a lessened blood supply to the brain.

It seems well established that during sleep a condition of anaemia of the brain exists, whatever may be the causes underlying it. This explains the feeling of drowsiness after a heavy meal, when there is a determination of blood to the digestive organs and a withdrawal of blood from the brain.

Importance of Sleep.

But there are many kinds of sleep, and the gentle post refers to only one kind—healthful, restful sleep—the kind that "slides into the soul."

That sleep is an important thing is sufficiently evidenced by the fact that man spends about one-third of his lifetime in that condition. Those who have tried to lessen this proportion have usually paid the penalty which nature exacts for any attempt to cheat in "playing the game."

Value of Early Training.

Babies should sleep most of the time, but most of them don't. The discipline of early training should be commenced in childhood and rigidly enforced. The practice of allowing little children to sit up in the evening so that papa may play with them is heartless, selfish and cruel. Children under ten years of age should be put to bed not later than 8:30 o'clock; from ten to fourteen years of age 8 o'clock should be the limit, and from then on until maturity is reached 9 o'clock is a safe and sane hour.

The evening meal should be simple and all excitement—romping, reading of exciting tales, hard study, etc., avoided. An effort should be made to encourage rather than disturb the natural drowsy proclivity to the healthy sleep, which is real food to the rapidly developing child brain.

With a good start in life along these lines it will take a vast amount of abuse and neglect to destroy the habit of healthful sleep. But modern life is complex; its work and play are exciting, strenuous and often unsettling. The childlike habit of sound sleep, when the rain upon the roof was a pleasant and soothing sound, is too often succeeded by the light and fitful sleep which vanishes with a creaking shutter or a gust of wind.

When one reaches such a state, what to do? It is easier to say what not to do, and we will approach the subject first from that standpoint.

Things to Avoid.

Do not, above all things, seek relief in drugs. They are seldom really needed, and when they are actually necessary it is playing with dangerous fire to use them except under the advice and control of a physician.

Another thing to avoid is worry over

Motor Fuel in France.

The Paris motor omnibuses use a mixture of equal parts of alcohol and benzol for fuel. The average consumption is also cut almost a ton kilometer.

loss of sleep. It is surprising how little sleep some people can get along with who deliberately keep late hours and never give a thought to the loss of sleep. A great deal of the injury to health from insomnia is caused by the attendant worry and fear that the condition will become chronic and that the lost sleep has produced some grave injury to health.

As a matter of fact, most cases of insomnia are readily curable if the patient's co-operation can be secured. In cases of mild insomnia, where the trouble is not of long standing and is due to worry, overwork or nerve strain of some kind, very simple remedies will often suffice, and it is at this stage that a determined effort should be made to check the growing habit.

In the first place, have faith in your ability to check the tendency. It is to solve that you will not carry your cares to bed with you and especially avoid harassing problems immediately before retiring. Do your hard thinking in the morning hours. You will think more clearly and take less time about it. Make it a settled practice to work out your tough life problems in the early hours of the day.

It is surprising how a prodigious worry which after a long day's work looms enormous and threatening, like the genie emerging from a bottle in the Arabian tale, will dwindle to ridiculous proportions when viewed in the morning light. The tired brain cannot get a true perspective of affairs, and just as everything seen through a rough, uneven glass appears distorted so do our troubles when seen through tired eyes. The rested morning brain is well balanced. It weighs accurately and will measure real trouble when it comes and more thoroughly prepare to meet it than the overworked "evening" brain, which is always crying "Wolf, wolf!" If you are a commuter think it out on the train. If you are a farmer wrestle with it as you plow the field. If you are so thrice blessed as to have a garden and a spare moment work it—dig, dig—and at one and the same time you will gain health and succor from your mental strains and twists.

When to Call Physician.

If all efforts to expel care from the mind at night fail and the brain continues overacting in spite of every effort, if some sharp corner in life is being turned and nature's limit has been reached, then the time for the physician has arrived. Sleep under such circumstances must be had if prolonged illness or mental breakdown is to be avoided. The physician must use his judgment in each particular case, but it is seldom that he cannot bring relief and restore control. It is only where reckless neglect and self drugging have undermined the nervous system that his efforts fail.

In the milder cases of insomnia, however, in addition to the cultivation of self control and orderly thinking habits as above outlined, there are simple measures which are often effective. The most potent is the hot foot bath. If you are skeptical, try it some night when your brain is throbbing and your head is spinning from a long, vexatious day. Immerse the feet in water as hot as can be borne for ten to twenty minutes. Then hop into bed, shut your eyes, and it will be rare indeed that the "Land of Nod" will not open to you and give you rest. The evening foot bath is a mighty good thing even for those who are not especially troubled with insomnia. It rests the brain and promotes a more normal sleep than most civilized people are able to get.

Another good remedy is a slightly warm general bath just before retiring. Both hot and cold general baths are stimulating and will not promote sleep.

Importance of Diet.

Restless, disturbed sleep with wearying dreams—the kind the little boy has in the funny papers—is not uncommon. In such cases indigestion is frequently responsible. Careful diet at the evening meal is worth while if you wish to avoid trouble. Thorough chewing of all bread, pastry and vegetable food is advisable. Constipation must also be guarded against, not by the constant use of cathartics, but by exercise, water taken rather freely between meals and regular habits. "Acid stomach" and intestinal fermentation, causing the accumulation of gas, are often the cause of restless sleep. Immediate relief may be had through simple domestic remedies, such as milk of magnesia, bicarbonate of soda, etc., but an effort should be made to prevent such a condition by proper eating habits.

Late suppers, tea, coffee, etc., are, of course, to be avoided by those who do not rest well.

Summary of Sleep Suggestions.

Live a healthy, sane life in the open as far as possible; exercise within proper limits; eat simple food and chew it thoroughly; look your troubles in the face, but do it when you are best prepared to meet them. Have regular hours for sleep and do not use them to marshal the facts of your business; avoid stimulants and drugs and sleep in a well ventilated room.

Home Course In Tree Preservation

By JOHN DAVEY,
Father of Tree Surgery.

VI.—The Trees and the Song Birds.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

AS I speed over the country in my lecture work on "The Salvation of Our Trees" there are many things to inspire and cheer the heart, especially that of seeing what attempts people make to grow trees, shrubs and flowers. I sometimes feel that I should like to get off the train and stop people just now. To me everything seems so simple. There is no luck, no chance; it is all cause and effect. Learn just what to do, and do it, and old Mother Nature is there ready to do all the rest, and, say, does she not do finely?

The one discouraging thing is, as is often the case, to meet some stupid, bigoted, conceited old man who thinks he knows all and can't even raise a good crop of weeds. In the decade that is about to close there is truly something inspiring. In that short time, since my old "Tree Doctor" raised the cry for "our wounded friends the trees" and the Cleveland newspapers re-echoed the call to the nation, practically all the newspapers have lent their aid, and the great magazines have done noble work, and the education is thorough, but so slow. As yet there is not 5 per cent of the adults that are awake to the real, deplorable condition of the trees. The deterioration of the trees is faster than the education as to how to take care of them; hence my only hope now lies with the child.

Illustration No. 11 shows Mr. and Mrs. William Lodge of Silver Lake, O.

NO. 11.—CHILDREN ARE HOLDING SEEDLING WALNUT TREES.

It is not only interesting and pretty, but there are the profoundest of thoughts clustering around it. The little boys are holding a couple of seedling walnut trees, the seed (nuts) of which I brought from the old Charles Dana place, Desoria Island, Glen Cove, N. Y. The plants are a year old, and they, it is hoped, will grow up with the children. To give an idea of what one generation could do we call attention to illustration No. 12. These trees (the largest ones) were planted thirty-three years ago by the grandfather of the children here seen. They were planted right and then taken care of, and here they stand, honoring the memory of the patriotic citizen who believed that one of the best ways to serve one's country is to plant trees. This new movement, the saving of our song birds, exhibits an unaccountable slowness on the part of the average adult to be aroused to one of the greatest menaces that have ever been known in the history of nations, the total extinction of our song birds by the English sparrow and the crow. Unless the increase and depredations of these two fiends are checked our native small birds cannot last for another decade. Already we learn that an average of one-fourth of all the crops of the United States is destroyed by insects. "Destroy all the insectivorous birds," says Michael, "and in nine years the human race will perish from the face of the earth."

NO. 12.—TREES PLANTED THIRTY-THREE YEARS AGO BY GRANDFATHER OF CHILDREN IN ILLUSTRATION NO. 11.

I want my readers to help restore and preserve our song birds. The only way to do this is to destroy the English sparrow, which destroys the song birds. There is an "uprising" nearly all over the country against this imported pest.

The English sparrow must be destroyed if we are to save our trees. All our trees will be ruined by insects if the sparrows keep up their fight against the insect killing birds.

If you would save your trees destroy the English sparrows.

You are the man to answer these questions:

Do you want a car whose manufacturers are forced to reductions in price, to keep sales up and factory alive?

Do you want a car whose makers are, with established reputation from Producing cars of Quality, able to maintain and greatly increase their output?

The Cadillac organization has long predicted that such a step must be taken by certain manufacturers. Therefore the present condition comes not as a surprise, but as a justification of their position and policy.

Conditions of this nature simply caution buyers to look closely into the antecedents of the companies competing for their business and should cause them to investigate, with the greatest thoroughness, the quality of the cars under consideration.

It is this attitude of investigation which we welcome and encourage. We want buyers to investigate the Cadillac Motor Co., ourselves and the quality of the Cadillac Car.

The Cadillac car is a high grade product, honestly manufactured, and sold at a low price made possible by a trained organization, labor saving machinery of latest type and quantity production.

The Cadillac Company has the confidence and support of the buying public, because of their honest product and their straightforward, fair and business-like dealings.

This confidence is best indicated by the fact that never before was there so great a demand of Cadillac cars as there is today.

Never before were so many Cadillac cars bought by men who have unlimited means and who can buy any priced machine,

Never before was any car at a medium price successfully sold in competition with high priced cars of good reputation.

Mr. Buyer, you should think hard on these facts before you buy your car.

How one man fooled his wife

She had been using her "favorite" baking powder. Wouldn't think of trying anything else, because "mother always used it," or some similar excuse. Hubby said she was prejudiced. He figured if Calumet, the new baking powder, selling at a moderate price, could be so successful, there must be some good in it. So he took a hand, and bought a can of Calumet, emptied the can containing her "favorite" baking powder and filled it with Calumet.

That evening, unsuspecting the trick, Wife prepared and served some of her famous biscuit— piping hot, temptingly browned and pulled up to airy lightness, they were even more delicious than usual. Hubby, after considerable difficulty, succeeded in convincing her that the basis of the improvement was Calumet Baking powder. And so an everlasting friend for Calumet was made.

This truthful little incident simply proves that the housewife is oftimes prejudiced against all baking powders except the one she has been using for years. She imagines that no other kind can possibly be as good. This is a mistaken impression. A trial of Calumet will prove that it is purer, more reliable; it has a greater leavening power than any other baking powder made. And it is moderate in price.

STUDENT KILLED BY TRAIN.

Gives Up His Life to Save Sister and Her Friend.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Leslie Childs gave his life in saving his sister and a friend from injury beneath a train. Shortly afterward, Lawrence Ryan and Paul Herrick, school chums of Childs, gave up some of their blood in a vain effort to save his life.

It was while hurrying to catch a Chicago and Northwestern train that young Childs, who was nineteen years old, was run down by the train. He was returning home from the opening exercises of the Carl Schurz high school with his sister, Marjorie Childs, seventeen years old, and a group of acquaintances.

The party attempted to cross the tracks directly in front of the train. When he realized how close the train was, young Childs pushed his sister and Miss Elsie Cooper, another companion, across the tracks in safety, but on account of the slippery condition of the ground where he was standing, he fell and was unable to get out of the way of the engine himself. It passed over him, cutting off his left leg and crushing his right leg so badly that amputation was necessary.

PRAISE HUGHES AT BANQUET.

Court Integrity Is Theme at Dinner in Honor of Justice.

New York, Nov. 21.—The importance of upholding the dignity and integrity of the higher courts of this country was the predominating note of the addresses delivered at the Lotus club at a dinner in honor of Charles E. Hughes, former governor of New York and now associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States.

Four hundred members and guests were present. All the speakers praised Justice Hughes, his record as a governor and his ability as lawyer and jurist.

In introducing the guest Frank E. Lawrence, president of the club, said in part: "The Supreme court of the United States is one of the bulwarks of our liberty. Whoever strikes a blow at the respect entertained by the people for the Supreme court of the United States strikes a blow at the security of our government, and whenever confidence in our greatest tribunal becomes impaired, then indeed our institutions will be endangered."

WATCHES WIFE BURN TO DEATH.

Crippled Husband Unable Save Woman When Garments Catch Fire.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Unable to move because of injuries sustained in a boiler explosion two weeks ago, Thomas Kelly, a watchman, was compelled to remain seated in a chair ten feet away and look on while his wife, Mrs. Alice Kelly, forty-five years old, her clothing in flames, stood screaming for help.

The woman's hair and nearly all of her clothing had been burned off when a neighbor reached her. She was taken unconscious to a hospital, where death followed several hours afterward.

Mrs. Kelly's six-year-old boy accidentally dropped a lighted candle, which ignited the mother's garments.

They'll Not Do It.

A woman who has reached the age of ninety advises her less mature sisters in order to enjoy longevity to "swim and avoid corsets." The latter sex will consent to swim or dive opportunely, but as to avoiding corsets or being out of fashion, it would not do that even if it enabled them to attain the age of 100.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

BRIAND STRUCK BY A ROYALIST

FRENCH PREMIER ATTACHED WHILE WALKING WITH PRESIDENT FALLIERES.

HIS ASSAILANT IS MOBBED

Enemy of Republic Who Seeks to Hit the Government Through Cabinet's Head Is Barely Saved From Death by Police.

Paris, Nov. 21.—A youthful royalist dealt Premier Briand two blows in the face as the latter was walking with President Fallieres in the Tuilleries garden, and then while prostrate upon the ground bleed with a mob not to harm his assailant. The premier was not seriously hurt.

President Fallieres, also attacked in public by the same man, assisted Briand before he looked to his own injuries.

Police Save Assailant.

But the pleading of Briand would not have saved the attacker had not the police quickly whisked him away, for the crowd, yelling "kill him!" jumped upon him and had started to beat and kick him. He was considerably damaged ere the gendarmes hurried him to the safety of a cell.

Briand was struck both times in the face and Fallieres was punched in the breast. The assailant was a strong man and his attack sent the premier reeling many feet. Fallieres stood the attack in better shape.

The attack occurred at the conclusion of the national ceremonies in the Tuilleries gardens. President Fallieres, M. Briand and other ministers were walking toward the gateway when the man broke through the guards that lined the road.

After the attack, and as he lay in the dust, Briand cried: "I am all right. Protect my assailant."

Strikes at Republic.

The prisoner, who gave his name as "Lacour," said he was a member of the executive committee of the "Camelots du Roi," an organization of young royalists, and that he wished to strike at the republic in the person of Briand.

The "Camelots du Roi" met and unanimously elected Lacour vice-president of the association in token of their sympathy and admiration for his act.

The services in the Tuilleries were in honor of the late M. Ferry, statesman and upholder of French colonies. Two million school children have contributed a penny each for the erection of a statue to Ferry, and under this statue was placed a golden book containing the names of the 2500,000 children.

GRIDIRON TOLL IS 14 KILLED.

Decrease in Fatalities Is Shown From Former Year.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—A total of 14 dead and 43 seriously injured was the price paid for football by its followers during the season just closing, despite the use of the new rules, which were brought into being in an effort to reform the game and make it less perilous to the players.

That the new rules were successful to a more or less extent in keeping down the list of victims, is shown by the decline in the list of victims, as compared with the previous year.

During the football season of 1909 there were 23 players killed and 64 injured. Of the latter, eight died between the close of the 1909 season and the opening of the 1910. Two years ago there was one less death than in 1910, but the number of injuries ran much higher. There were 134 youths so badly hurt that they were forced to have the attention of surgeons.

FOSS ASKS LODGE TO WITHDRAW.

Declares He Will Stump to Defeat Senator If He Refuses.

Boston, Nov. 21.—Gov. Elect Eugene N. Foss issued a statement in which he demands that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge withdraw from the field for reelection. In the event of a refusal Mr. Foss declared he would go into every section of the commonwealth in a campaign to defeat the senator.

Mr. Foss declares in his statement that "the election of Lodge to the senate would be a repudiation of the great victory of the people at the last election. He was on trial as much if not more than Governor Draper, and if he had been the candidate, my majority would have been double what it was."

$100,000 GIFT TO MILLIKEN.

Mr. Hoyt was graduated from Yale in President Taft's class, 1878. Mr.

Henry M. Hoyt.

Hoyt had just concluded the preliminary work at Ottawa for the reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada. He held the position of solicitor general at the department of justice, in which he was succeeded a year ago by the late Lloyd Bowers. He was of the legal caliber which entitled him to consideration by the president for a position on the Supreme bench. President Taft had an eminently high regard for Mr. Hoyt and he was placed in the state department by the president to deal with some of the grave problems which are now before it.

CARTER FOR SUPREME COURT?

Declared Montana Senator Has Been Offered Moody's Seat.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 21.—United States Senator Thomas H. Carter, defeated for reelection at the recent election, is slated for a seat on the Supreme court of the United States.

Close friends of the senator announced here that he had been tendered the seat vacated by Associate Justice Moody.

Senator Carter hurriedly left for Washington but refused to confirm or deny the story told by his friends.

Washington, Nov. 21.—The resignation of Associate Justice William H. Moody of the Supreme court of the United States became effective today, reducing the number of members on the bench to seven. Ill health has prevented Justice Moody for more than a year performing his duties as a member of the court.

ON WHOM WILL THE TOGA FALL?

Two of the many interesting senatorial fights attract unusual attention. Men mentioned as possible senatorial candidates are: John J. Lutz of Cincinnati; Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo; Newton D. Edward M. Shepard continues to be the one most prominently mentioned for United States senator in New York. In some quarters Murphy himself has been seriously discussed as a possible successor to DeWitt.

Alton B. Parker again put himself on record as declining to be considered, saying: "My obligations are such that I would not accept the office even if it should be tendered to me."

D. Cary Horlick, Norman E. Mack, State Chairman Huppich, Congressmen-elect Martha W. Littleton, William P. Sheehan, Thomas M. Osborne and Herman P. Blase of Buffalo are also suggested.

Word came from Toledo that Gen. Isaac H. Sherwood, thrice elected congressman in a Republican district, might enter the race as the champion of the old soldier element. The other possible candidates named are John J. Lutz of Cincinnati; Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo; Newton D. Baker and John H. Clark of Cleveland; W. W. Hawley of Dayton; John H. McLean of Cincinnati, and Will S. Thomas of Springfield.

They'll Not Do It.

A woman who has reached the age of ninety advises her less mature sisters in order to enjoy longevity to "swim and avoid corsets." The softer sex will consent to swim or dive opportunely, but as to avoiding corsets or being out of fashion, it would not do that even if it enabled them to attain the age of 100.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

BRIAND STRUCK BY A ROYALIST

FRENCH PREMIER ATTACHED WHILE WALKING WITH PRESIDENT FALLIERES.

HIS ASSAILANT IS MOBBED

Enemy of Republic Who Seeks to Hit the Government Through Cabinet's Head Is Barely Saved From Death by Police.

Paris, Nov. 21.—A youthful royalist dealt Premier Briand two blows in the face as the latter was walking with President Fallieres in the Tuilleries garden, and then, while prostrate upon the ground, plead with a mob not to harm his assailant. The premier was not seriously hurt.

President Fallieres, also attacked in public by the same man, assisted Briand before he looked to his own injuries.

Police Save Assailant.

But the pleas of Briand would not have saved the attacker had not the police quickly whisked him away, for the crowd, yelling "kill him!" jumped upon him and had started to beat and kick him. He was considerably damaged ere the gendarmes hurried him to the safety of a cell.

Briand was struck both times in the face and Fallieres was punched in the breast. The assailant was a strong man and his attack sent the premier reeling many feet. Fallieres stood the attack in better shape.

The attack occurred at the conclusion of the national ceremonies in the Tuilleries gardens. President Fallieres, M. Briand and other ministers were walking toward the gateway when the man broke through the guards that lined the road.

After the attack, and as he lay in the dust, Briand cried: "I am all right. Protect my assailant."

Strikes at Republic.

The prisoner, who gave his name as Lacour, said he was a member of the executive committee of the "Camelots du Roi," an organization of young royalists, and that he wished to strike at the republic in the person of Briand.

The "Camelots du Roi" met and unanimously elected Lacour vice-president of the association in token of their sympathy and admiration for his act.

The services in the Tuilleries were in honor of the late M. Ferry, statesman and upholder of French colonies. Two million school children have contributed a penny each for the erection of a statue to Ferry, and under this statue was placed a golden book containing the names of the 2,000,000 children.

GRIDIRON TOLL IS 14 KILLED.

Decrease in Fatalities Is Shown From Former Year.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—A total of 14 dead and 42 seriously injured was the price paid for football by its followers during the season just closing, despite the use of the new rules, which were brought into being in an effort to reform the game and make it less perilous to the players.

That the new rules were successful to a more or less extent in keeping down the list of victims, is shown by the decline in the list of victims, as compared with the previous year.

During the football season of 1909 there were 23 players killed and 54 injured. Of the latter, eight died between the close of the 1909 season and the opening of the 1910. Two years ago there was one less death than in 1910, but the number of injuries ran much higher. There were 134 youths so badly hurt that they were forced to have the attention of surgeons.

FOSS ASKS LODGE TO WITHDRAW.

Declares He Will Stump to Defeat Senator If He Refuses.

Boston, Nov. 21.—Gov. Elton Eugene Foss issued a statement in which he demands that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge withdraw from the field for reelection. In the event of a refusal Mr. Foss declared he would go into every section of the commonwealth in a campaign to defeat the senator.

Mr. Foss declares in his statement that "the election of Lodge to the senate would be a repudiation of the great victory of the people at the last election. He was on trial as much if not more than Governor Draper, and if he had been the candidate, my majority would have been double what it was."

$100,000 GIFT TO MILLIKEN.

Trustees Pay Over First Part of Endowment to University.

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 21.—Announcement was made at the James Milliken university of the first gift by the trustees of the $1,500,000 estate of James Milliken. It is for two buildings, one for a school of music and one for a gymnasium, the two to cost $100,000.

Mr. Milliken, before his death in March, 1909, gave about $400,000 to the university bearing his name, and his estate was left in trust for charity and educational purposes. He was a banker.

South Dakota Needs Teachers.

Aberdeen, S. D., Nov. 21.—A scarcity of school teachers is reported in many sections of South Dakota and many schools are closed as a result notwithstanding the fact that teachers wages are higher than ever before in the state.

HENRY MARTIN HOYT IS DEAD.

Counselor of State Department Succumbs to Attack of Peritonitis.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Henry M. Hoyt, counselor of the state department, died here of peritonitis after an illness of only four days.

Mr. Hoyt was graduated from Yale in President Taft's class, 1878. Mr.

Henry M. Hoyt.

Hoyt had just concluded the preliminary work at Ottawa for the reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada. He held the position of solicitor general at the department of justice, in which he was succeeded a year ago by the late Lloyd Dowers. He was of the legal caliber which entitled him to consideration by the president for a position on the Supreme bench. President Taft had an eminently high regard for Mr. Hoyt and he was placed in the state department by the president to deal with some of the grave problems which are now before it.

CARTER FOR SUPREME COURT?

Declared Montana Senator Has Been Offered Moody's Seat.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 21.—United States Senator Thomas H. Carter, defeated for reelection at the recent election, is slated for a seat on the Supreme court of the United States.

Carter's friends of the senator announced here that he had been tendered the seat vacated by Associate Justice Moody.

Senator Carter hurriedly left for Washington but refused to confirm or deny the story told by his friends.

Washington, Nov. 21.—The resignation of Associate Justice William H. Moody of the Supreme court of the United States became effective today, reducing the number of members on the bench to seven. His health has prevented Justice Moody for more than a year performing his duties as a member of the court.

GALE IMPERILS FIVE AIRMEN.

Pilot and Four Passengers Hurled From Basket in Landing.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 21.—In a 65-mile gale, which buffeted their big skyship about like a toy balloon, Pilot Leo Stevens of New York and the four Williams college students who ascended in the balloon Cleveland from North Adams, landed three hours and thirty-five minutes later on the shore of a lake just outside this city.

All of the occupants of the airship were thrown out and one, H. P. Scherman of London, England, was rendered unconscious. He sustained injuries to his back which it is feared may prove serious.

ON WHOM WILL THE TOGA FALL?

Two of the many interesting senatorial fights attract unusual attention.

Men mentioned as possible senator: Brand Whitlock of Toledo; Newton D. Baker and John H. Clark of Cleveland; E. W. Hawley of Dayton; John R. MeLean of Cincinnati, and Will S. Thomas of Springfield.

Edward M. Shepard continues to be the one most prominently mentioned for United States senator in New York. In some quarters Murphy himself has been seriously discussed as a possible successor to Dewey.

Alton B. Parker again put himself on record as declining to be considered, saying: "My obligations are such that I would not accept the office even if it should be tendered to me."

D. Cady Herlick, Norman E. Mack, State Chairman Huppuch, Congressmen-elect Martin W. Littleton, William F. Sheehan, Thomas M. Osborne and Herman P. Blissell of Buffalo are also suggested.

Protect Vermiform Appendix. Denver, Col., Nov. 21.—Under the provisions of a bill which it is proposed to introduce into the next legislature, it will be a crime for any surgeon to remove the vermiform appendix unless it can be shown that its removal was absolutely necessary to the recovery of the patient.

Death Threat Sent Justice. Boston, Nov. 21.—A threat of death in the event of the officers of the International Photo Engravers' union being given full concessions for contempt of court, is said to have been contained in a letter received by one of the justices of the Massachusetts superior court.

Philosophical Reasoning. It may be unpalatable advice to tell a man who is suffering under a strong sense of injustice to be cool, restrained, and disciplined; but it is only by the practice of these qualities that he will ever remove the cause of his discontent.

Limit of Depravity. There is nothing lower than hypocrisy. To profess friendship and not enmity is a sure proof of total depravity.

Wanted Only Important Facts. An American speeding over the continent of Europe in his automobile asked of his chauffeur: "Where are we?" "In Paris," shouted the man at the wheel, and the dust flew. "Oh, never mind details," irritably screamed the American millionaire; "I mean what continent?"

Scientific Loafing. "Chess, checkers and whist are marvelous inventions," says the Philosopher of Folly. "They enable a man to waste his time and still have the feeling that he is accomplishing something intellectual."

Enemies of Rubber Tires. Rubber tires have three natural enemies that are destructive to rubber, light, heat and oil, and each has its own peculiar effect, which should be guarded against.

Your Parents. Encourage your parents to talk, children; you will discover that they did many things when they were young which they forbid you to do now.—Atchison Globe.

Worth Trying. "If a man can't depend on his friends, whom can he depend on?" "He might try himself for a change."

PENNY LUNCH FOR CHICAGO SCHOOL CHILDREN.
Women back of the movement to furnish Chicago school children with noon lunch of soup and bread at a cost of one cent. At left, Mrs. P. J. O'Keefe, who introduced the idea at the school board meeting. At right, Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of the public schools, who is actively back of the campaign for better fed school children.

Chicago, Ill.—As a result of a careful investigation carried on by a number of women it has been determined that many of Chicago's school children have no noon lunch and are forced to attend school throughout the day hungry. Others are in the habit of eating the scraps left by their more fortunate brothers and sisters. The system is demoralizing, and in order to put a stop to it Mrs. P. J. O'Keefe has made the startling proposition to the Chicago school board that noon lunches be furnished school children at one cent each. The lunch will be made up of soup and bread.
Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of the public schools, is actively back of the movement. The experiment is first to be tried out on a few of the schools (and if it proves successful it will ultimately be extended to the entire city).
The bread it is planned to turn out from the cooking school, which is carried on in connection with the public school. This soup is to be prepared in kitchen canners made in the manual training school, so the expense will be kept to a minimum. It is estimated that by an expenditure of not to exceed $1,000 per year Chicago's hungry school children can be fed by the school board at one cent each.

AMATEUR ATHLETIC UNION IN SESSION

It is Rumored That Eastern Clubs Will Oppose Re-election of Everett Brown as President.
(Special to this Gazette.)

New York, Nov. 21.—Several interesting contests are expected to ensue in the proceedings at the annual meeting of the National Amateur Athletic Union, which met in this city today with a full attendance of delegates representing the branch organizations throughout the country. In the first place, a fight for the presidency is in prospect, providing the Eastern clubs oppose the re-election of resident Everett C. Brown of Chicago, as has been rumored to be their intention. The selection of a place for holding the national track and field championships for next year is also likely to provoke a spirited contest between Chicago and several other cities which will bid for the event.

JEWISH CEREMONIAL PERFORMED TODAY

Double Ceremony of Circumcision Was Performed at Home of Mr. Mrs. Harry Rotstein.

In accordance with the law of the Jewish church requiring that the ceremony of circumcision be performed on the eighth day after birth, a double ceremony was performed this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rotstein at 100 Linn street. Toy Dimwood and Dr. M. Katschal of Chicago officiated at the ceremony, by which the two children, Morris and Rubla, were made members of the Jewish church. It was an occasion for a gala time and many friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rotstein. An elaborate dinner was served to the numerous guests. Besides many friends and relatives in this city a number of out of town people were present. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. I. Rubin and Mr. and Mrs. George Rubin of Rockford, Mr. David Weinberg of Ft. Atkinson, and Mr. and Mrs. Cantor of Detroit.

TOLSTOI TO BE BURIED TUESDAY

physical, economical, political and social problems. Tolstoi believed in the literalness of the words of Jesus. He held that the only rule of life is the precise living up to the maxims of the Sermon on the Mount.

In his novel entitled "The Resurrection," Count Tolstoi expressly denied some of the doctrines of the Orthodox State Church of Russia. In consequence he was excommunicated by the holy synod, which in March, 1901, issued a formal announcement, as follows:

"In its solicitude for the children of the Orthodox Church, to guard them from being led into corruption and in order to save those who have gone astray, the holy synod has deliberated upon the anti-Christian and anti-Orthodox teachings of Count Leo Tolstoi and has deemed it expedient, in order to preserve the peace of the church, to issue an irregular decree with the heresies of Count Leo Tolstoi. The decree is as follows: "Count Leo Tolstoi, to the grief and horror of the whole orthodox world, has, by speech and writing, unceasingly striven to separate himself from all communion with the orthodox church, and this not only clandestinely but openly, and in the knowledge of all persons. All attempts to dissuade him from this conduct have proved without avail. Consequently the orthodox church no longer considers him to be one of its members, and cannot regard him as such as long as he does not repent and does not become reconciled to the church."

"We, therefore, place on record his apostasy from the church and pray the Lord to restore him to a comprehension of the truth. We pray Thee, therefore, O merciful God, who does not desire the death of a sinner, to hear us, have mercy on him and restore him to Thy holy church, Amen." Tolstoi is survived by the Countess, to whom he was married in 1861, and by several sons and daughters.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

IF YOU want to see a stunning suit," said the man with me, "look over there."

I looked. And having a particular interest in winter suits at that time, I did more than just look. I analyzed. And it wasn't a remarkable suit at all. Just a very good looking broadcloth (framed with a fairly handsome braid). Not in the least more noteworthy than a dozen suits that had passed quite unnoticed. But the point was this. IT WAS SO STUNNINGLY WORKED THAT IT LOOKED STUNNING.

The woman had a good figure and she carried herself so very gracefully that the effect was that she was exceptionally well dressed.

The entire unconsciousness of the man's tribute made me realize anew what a vast difference carriage makes in anyone's appearance.

Nothing sets off a good gown or redeems a poor one like a good carriage.

Take that same gown which our unknown friend, with her springy step, squared shoulders, her head erect and her abdomen well held in, made appear such a stunning affair, and put it on a woman who didn't know how to stand, and you would at once convert it into a commonplace garment which no one would look at twice.

Nothing gives a look of youth any more than an erect carriage.

A man is as young as he feels and a woman as young as she looks, they say. I think it might be added—and both are as young as they stand.

The best ingredient of a good carriage is health, of course. Health naturally expresses itself in a graceful, lively, erect carriage. The healthy man steps with a springy step, squares his shoulders and holds his head up because he feels so strong and fit that he just couldn't stand and walk any other way. It is harder without this natural impetus to carry oneself so well. But by due effort it can be done and if it is done, I think the assumption of a healthy carriage reacts to create health. Step alertly, square your shoulders and hold up your head, and not as if you felt well, and you will be more apt to feel well. And that isn't Christian Science, either. It is a much better—C. S.—just Common Sense.

Do you step on the balls of your feet?
Do you throw your shoulders back?
Do you hold your abdomen in?
Do you hold your head high with your chin in?
Do you breathe from your abdomen?
To combine five questions in one, do you try to have that charm within the reach of everyone but possessed by very few—a good carriage?

FASHION OWES GREAT DEBT TO THE OSTRICH.

Hats adorned with feathers made after the latest Paris model.

There is nothing more beautiful for a hat than an ostrich feather. It is rich, it is graceful, it is becoming to young and old, to all kinds of complexions and to all types of faces, and there is never a season when it is not in style. The woman who has one possesses a treasure.

The really good ostrich feather is getting more scarce each year because the number of wild birds is diminishing. Birds in captivity do not yield such a fine quantity of feathers as those left free to roam at will in their native haunts, yet by far the greater number of feathers sold in this country and Europe are taken from the captive birds. The governments will have to take a hand in the protection of these birds because as they do of other birds, deer and fish if the feathers are to be preserved to the world in their original loveliness.

The yellow plume is even more costly than the regular ostrich. This is not because of the feather, but because of the labor involved. It takes three natural feathers to make a yellow plume, one of them serving as a foundation. To the ends of its strands, the strands of another feather are tied and to these still another, perhaps, according to the fancy of the moment. Some plumes consist of four, five, and even six sections, each adorned with a different color, each adding the value of a first class feather to the total value of the plume. Ostrich feathers can be purchased at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.80. The plumes run from $2.75 to $50. The cheapest ostrich feathers, of course, are inferior in quality.

Ostrich feathers are not for dress, solely. For a picture hat nothing is lovelier. The latest Paris models show hats loaded with them. The one in the cut with the drooping brim is trimmed with black hatter's plush and white plumes. The second cut shows a style appropriate for young girls, or even a child of six. It is a beaver hat with a drooping brim. The ostrich feathers are combined with rich satin ribbon.

It is a former season. Many kinds are worn, both the graceful, drooping kind, and those that stand up straight and stiff as the Indians wear.

want to wear them. Indeed it was an Indian that originated the idea. One of the styles, the fourth in the group, is named after that Indian who above all others is due to the American heart, Pocahontas. It is a velvet mushroom turban trimmed with gold bands and Pocahontas wings. It cannot be worn by everybody, but it gives to those who can wear it an air of smartness very desirable in one's costume.

The other turban represents a style that has already become popular on this side of the water. It is a modification of the look well on almost anyone. The original of the cut is made of velvet, as are most of the best hats this year, trimmed with gold braid and a large pompon of bronze coque feathers.

DEVOTED TO PILLOWS.

One Day Should Be Set Aside For Their Cleaning.

"A whole day for the pillow?" gasped the busy housewife, altogether unwilling to lay aside so much time on one article out of a household, but pillows are precious in the estimation of the careful householder, and eight or ten hours spent upon the family supply of pillows once a year will prove anything but a waste of time.

They require beating with a rattan beater, which will neither cut the seam nor wear the ticking, but if done on a dry, windy day, will clear out almost as much of the collected dust (and with it a fair supply of germs) as the most modern vacuum process.

Scrubbing is resorted to, when old ticking covers have been removed and are still strong and firm enough for continued use. With a hard brush a liberal supply of soapy water is rubbed into the ticking, which is spread out upon a table, preferably out of doors, and which later is scrubbed with force and then rinsed through several cold, clear waters and sunned to the point of absolute dryness.

Pillows themselves may, according to the latest authority, be treated similarly with the exception of the complete rinse, for it is well to remember that there are feathers within and that it is well therefore to use more scrubbing and less soapy water, adding a fair quantity of ammonia for cleansing purposes. Pillows thus treated are hung in the open air and the hottest sun to dry day after day until their feathers are dry without a shadow of a doubt.

Cork dust is a clean filling for the couch pillow, as are also old letters torn into small bits. Bran and sawdust are too heavy, while excelsior and hair are too hard. Rose leaves are a delight and balsam pine needles stand in a class by themselves.

A Phone Incident.
A housekeeper in New York phoned to the meat market, "Have you any liver this morning?"

"I hope so," came the response, with a cheery laugh which was not like the butcher's.

"Are you not the butcher?" she further inquired.

"Well, some people call me that, but I am really Dr. So-and-so," came the laughing reply.

As the woman recognized the name of one of the most famous surgeons in town, she gasped an apology and nervously rang up "Central" again.

Yield of Jamaica Ginger.
An average yield of ginger in Jamaica is about 2,000 pounds an acre.

AN EXACTING PROFESSION.

By MARY RUSSELL.

When men loaf, when women loaf they do fancy work." That was said in jest but it is so true that it is far more than amusing—it is a truth.

The woman who marries seldom has just one line of duty. To hear the sentimentalists prate of the sacred duty of "wife and mother" one would think that it was a career or a trade.

That to be a "wife and mother" was for women like being a doctor, or a lawyer for a man.

To be a good wife and mother in the ordinary household a woman must be first a "body" in the accepted sense. This means she must be intelligent on general topics of conversation. She must be patient and sweet voiced under trying circumstances. She must be wise as the serpent and gentle as the dove. She must be ready to sit at the head of the table and be a gracious hostess under any of the circumstances which try the feminine soul, or go into the kitchen if the cook leaves suddenly.

She must be a good manager. This is a gift and is almost impossible to acquire. Women are expected, however, to graduate from college or high school and assume a household's management with all the wisdom of experience. The "ideal wife and mother" must be a good cook. That is really the first thing that seems to be demanded of her if the qualifications required are closely scanned. The man often imagines he desires a companion, but deep in his heart, he wants a cook. Remember that when qualifying for this exacting position.

Then she must understand washing and ironing, house cleaning, care of furniture, management of grocery boys and milkmen. She may not have to do these things but she must know how.

And she must be a good seamstress. This is also one of the first requirements of the average woman.

She must be an economist of marvelous instinct if she would be a helpmate to her husband.

She should be religious in the sense of spiritual and, if she expects to keep her husband's love, she must be neat and careful of her attire. If she is able to have a maid in the kitchen she must be able to so manage that maid as to make her work appear a "personally conducted tour." No one must suspect that the mistress is not giving every detail of the household her personal care.

She must give her personal attention to shopping, as shopping by phone will result in waste.

She must be comrade, companion and friend to both husband and children.

Yet at the same time she must be the disciplinarian of the children and a restraining influence on her husband.

That women often fall short of this ideal is not surprising. The wonder is that any ever come up to it, and some do.

The woman who comes through life's examination on all these qualifications with high marks is a marvel. She is more than what the school boy calls a "shark" for work. She is a combination of angel and ox with a large portion of humanity and restores faith in the possibilities of the human creature.

That she takes her leisure with a needle in her hand is far more symbolic than the hummer meant it to be. It is the condition that drives her. Not the fact that she cannot remain idle, but the fact that she dreads not to do so.

The average woman is just a human creature for all. Neither the angel of the lover, nor the demon of the

TWO MINUTE CURE FOR COLD
IN HEAD OR CHEST

It is Curing Thousands Daily, and Saves Time and Money.

Get a bowl three quarters full of boiling water, and a towel. Pour into the water a teaspoonful of HYOMEL (pronounced high-o-mel). Put your head over the bowl and cover both head and bowl with towel. Breathe the vapor that arises for two minutes, and presto! your head is as clear as a bell, and the tightness in the chest is gone.

Nothing like it to break up a heavy cold; cure sore throat or drive away a cough. It's a pleasant cure. You'll enjoy breathing Hyomel. You'll feel at once its soothing, healing and beneficial effects as it passes over the inflamed and irritated membrane. 50 cents a bottle; at drug stores everywhere. Ask The People's Drug Company for extra bottle Hyomel Inhalant.

Garnishings for Soups.
Usually soup garnishes are limited in number to three or four. A garnish that is both tasty and good to look at is worth consideration. Noodles are a common garnish and are generally liked. To prepare them, beat an egg slightly, add a teaspoonful of salt and flour enough to make a stiff dough; knead, toss on a floured board and roll as thinly as possible. Cover with a towel and set aside for half an hour; then cut in fancy shapes, using a French knife or a vegetable cutter. Dry for an hour, then cook 20 minutes in boiling salted water; drain and add to soup. Noodles are served as a vegetable.

White Dill Garnish.—Roll the trimmings of puff paste, and cut in narrow strips three-fourths of an inch long and an eighth of an inch wide. Fry in deep fat until brown, then drain on brown paper. Serve passed with the soup.

Egg Custard.
Beat two eggs slightly, add two cups of milk and a few grains of salt. Pour into a small buttered cup and place in a pan of hot water to cook until firm; remove from the cup, cut in fancy shapes with French vegetable cutters.

Fritter Beans.
Beat an egg until light, add two tablespoons of milk, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt and a cupful of flour. Put through a colander into deep fat until brown. Drain on brown paper.

Egg Balls.
Rub the yolks of two hard-boiled eggs through a sieve, add an eighth of a teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne and half a teaspoonful of melted butter; moisten with uncooked yolk of egg to make of the consistency to handle. Shape in small balls, roll in flour and saute in butter.

Royal Custard.
Beat the yolks of three eggs and one whole egg slightly, add half a cup of soup stock (consomme is the best), season with nutmeg, salt and cayenne. Put into a buttered mold, place in a pan of water and bake until firm; cool, remove from the mold, and cut in fancy shapes.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

"You, though I forget what," replied his mother, dismissing Newport. "But in the States there must be hair-raising adventures in great numbers everywhere, as all American girls appear to be rich in more or less degrees. They flock to Europe from towns with the most extraordinary names. I know there was one—Oshkosh or something of that sort."

"I hardly think I should have to go as far afield as Oshkosh, wherever it may be," said Loveland, glancing at his double in the mirror, where was reflected also the worn furnishings of his mother's drawing room. With a pang he saw the sorry background and forgot himself for a moment in thinking of Loveland castle, a very noble, dull palace, all marble, gold plate, portraits and precedences when in its prime, echoing sadness now until such time as the heir might redeem it with some fair lady's dollars. The murmur of those echoes depressed him, as did the white whirl of snow veiling the windows of the shooting lodge whither Lady Loveland had retired to live upon nothing that he might have something.

"Of course you won't need to go to Oshkosh," Lady Loveland said. "I only meant that if there could be millions in a town with such a name what must there be in others more important and easier to get at?"

"I'll stick to the important ones that are easy to get at."

"That means you are making up your mind to go?"

"It's practically made-up, thanks to you, mother. I believe in quick decisions."

"Well, then, it's quite settled. I feel it's for the best. And I can trust you."

He looked at his mother, a young man of twenty, with a determined expression on his face, and a slight tremor of his arm or hand due to nervousness in the face of the great task that lay before him.

well, not to be ashamed of. "You might find something that would do on the ship which would save so much time and trouble," exclaimed Lady Loveland, brightening. "You could marry immediately on landing. And yet—perhaps it would be foolish to do anything irretrievable until you'd looked to see what there was in New York. You mustn't be reckless when so much depends upon prudence. Still, it would be wise to sail on a good ship, where you might meet millionaires. That would be only an ordinary precaution," said Loveland.

"We must manage it somehow—and a good cabin. You owe that to your position."

"I owe so much already I may as well owe a little more."

"Val, dear, I asked you not to joke. It confuses me. And I need to concentrate all my ideas upon one point. Let me see—yes, the pink pearls!"

"The pink pearls?" asked Loveland, startled.

"I still have them—the double rope, you know."

"I know—another beautiful heirloom. Your bride can redeem it and the other things. I've always saved the pink pearls for a great emergency. This is a great emergency. Battenborough ought to give seven or eight hundred, as you say, wouldn't go far among the debts, they might send you to America and back."

"I'll have to throw a few sops to Cerberus if I want new clothes to impress the American girls," laughed Val.

"That brute Cerberus won't give me so much as a waistcoat unless he gets something on account."

"Pay him something," said Lady Loveland. "Pay what you must. Keep what you can for yourself. As for me, I want nothing."

"Except a rich daughter-in-law," finished her son, his spirits rising, though the snow still fell. After all, it was only October, and there was sunshine elsewhere. In America perhaps it was now shining on his bride to be. "I'll write to Betty about the letters," he said, "after you've given me some tea."

CHAPTER II. THE INEXTINGIBLE FOXHALL.

ONE of Loveland's most easily detected virtues was his carelessness habit of telling the truth. He had never lied or even fibbed whitely as a small boy. But Lady Betty Battenborough had maintained that this bold truthfulness of her cousin's was the result of inconsiderateness rather than nobility of soul.

She said (and she ought to have known, as she had been acquainted with him since she was two and he eight years old) that he did not bother to think of polite lies simply because the feelings of others were not for him of enough importance to seem worth saving at the cost of mental effort.

Besides, according to Betty, Val took an implicit delight in shocking people. Now, in his letter to Betty asking for introductions he made no attempt to cover his real intentions with the roses of pretty fiction.

He let it appear plainly that he thought his cousin, having visited America and snatched a millionaire from the matrimonial grab bag, ought gladly to help him succeed in the same game.

"The wretch!" said Betty in the midst of reading Loveland's brutally frank letter to Jim, her American trophy. "I believe he has the impudence to think I married you for money! I'd like to shake him and box his silly, concealed ears."

"They may be silly and concealed, but they're exactly the shape of yours, darling. So I couldn't find it in my heart to box them, no matter how much good it might do their owner," said Jim Harborough, who had been Betty's husband for nearly a year and was joyously watching her triumph as a young married woman.

Naturally Betty kissed him for this speech, as they were at breakfast alone together, the servants banished.

"Well, anyway we won't give him the letters," she said when she had gone back to her own place, not far away.

"Won't we?" asked Jim, with a thoughtful air.

"No, certainly not," returned Betty. "I like your countrywomen and won't deliberately let Loveland lose to prey upon them."

"I guess they can take care of themselves," said Jim, putting on his Yankee accent.

"I don't know. Some of them might fall in love with him," suggested Betty doubtfully. "He's awfully good looking, with a kind of whining, boyish way and a voice that's far too nice to express him, really. One often feels too tender with Val, as if he were one of one's own pet weaknesses come alive and walking about."

"As for his looks, he's more like you than your own brother is," said Jim. "Eyes, dimples, curly hair and all. So you wouldn't want me to hate him, would you? And, for his voice, it's occurred to me that maybe it expresses something in his real self—the hidden self that he and nobody else knows anything about—the self he's never had a chance to develop or find out because his mother and other people have spoiled him from his babyhood."

"That's very subtle of you, Jim, as well as very kind and like you," said Betty. "I wish I could think it's true, as he's my cousin. But, thank goodness, I for one never spoiled him. I scratched his face once when I was a small girl, and I'm glad. I wish it had left a mark."

"It would have been even a more honorable scar than the one South Africa gave him. But I admit he is rather an unlikely cub at present. I pity the girl who falls in love with him as he now is."

"Always was and probably ever will," said Betty.

and pick up the right girl as to get everything in shape as soon as possible or I may find myself in a mess. I learned to shift for myself like a regular navy in South Africa. A chap has to keep clean and have the right folds in his trousers, whatever happens, and I worried along somehow without disgracing the family. I can do the same now, though it'll be a bore, especially till I get used to it again."

Thus the pink pearl money was apportioned, a little here and a little there, and made to go as far as possible.

Foxham stopped with his lordship till after the return to London, doing the final packing and all his ordinary work as usual, without a greedy word as to arrears of wages.

On getting back to his quarters near Wellington barracks Val was somewhat surprised to receive a visit from Harborough, who had never come to call on him before.

"So you've got your leave, I hear, and are sailing for my blessed country in a few days?" Jim remarked.

Loveland replied that this was the case and happened to think of thanking Jim for his letters of introduction. Harborough answered casually that that was all right and went on to say that he had read in a paper or heard from a man that Loveland had taken his passage on the Baltic.

"Yes," said Val. "I wanted to go over on a good ship."

"Well, the Baltic's a ripping one—couldn't be a better," Jim admitted. "But I should have thought you'd have the curiosity to try the newest thing."

"The Mauretania?" said Loveland. "Don't suppose I could have got a passage on her for the next three or four trips across."

"Perhaps you couldn't," said Jim. "But I can get you one."

"Why, who sails tomorrow, doesn't she?" asked Val.

"Yes," said Jim, "but you can go on her if you like, with a good cabin, too, all to yourself."

"My passage is paid for on the Baltic, and my name's on her passenger list," said Loveland.

"Well, it's too late to have your name printed on the Mauretania's passenger list or perhaps to get back your money for the Baltic," said Jim. "But that needn't stand in your way. You won't have to pay for your cabin on the Mauretania. It's going begging. A friend of mine can't sail has given his ticket to me to do with as I like, but as he's a man whose movements make things in Wall Street jump up and down like a sawney he doesn't want it known that he's got to stay behind because he's seasick; that's all. If you want to go in his place, go and say nothing till you get on the other side. By that time he'll be on his way on a following ship. At least that's what he hopes."

"Do you mean that if I want to cross in the Mauretania I must pass under your friend's name?" asked Loveland.

"Oh, no! nothing of the sort," answered Jim Harborough, smiling at his pleasant snail. "What I meant was don't go advertising the fact that you've got Henry Vandepot's cabin because he's not well enough to sail. All you'll have to do is to say to the waiter on the Mauretania from the beginning of things."

Upper left, Keough's great pool shot. Upper right, shot that won De Oro's first pool championship in 1888. Lower left, Werner's great shot which won him a tournament and many big wagers. Lower right, De Oro's shot which brought about the defeat of John Roberts, English champion, in New York in 1893.

New York, N. Y.—It takes nerve to execute the skilled shots in a pool tournament. To the spectator the work seems comparatively simple but the players are constantly under a nervous strain which cannot be appreciated.

Players know from experience that the proper execution of some shots depends on the steadiness of their nerves. Their brain is well trained as to how the shot should be made, but a slight tremor of their arm or hand due to nervousness is likely to bring about such bad manipulation with the cue that failure to score the shot is the result.

In all games there is an element of luck, but not so much in billiards and pool as one generally imagines. Alfred De Oro, who is probably the longest in the pool game as an expert, and who is still confident of holding his own with the younger generation of players, is now preparing to regain the title of the world's champion pool player, which he has defended several times and lost once.

The opponent in the match is to be Jerome Keough of Buffalo, present holder of the title, and the three night's contest will take place in New York November 28, 29 and 30.

He Spoke. "Speak to me," he pleaded, and looked into his deep brown eyes. "Speak to me," she repeated, and stroked his soft curly hair. And this he could not resist. "How-wow," he said.

Mixed Metaphor. At a service recently the preacher delivered an eloquent address on "Flowers as a Cure for Worry." "We are told," he said, "that more die from worry than from anything else—and yet they will go on worrying!"

Youth's Illusive Dreams. "When I was a youngster I wanted to be a pirate and sail the sea and make men tremble when I spoke." "Well, you do travel some." "Yes; but instead of making anybody tremble I'm thankful for a kind word from a customs officer."

His Objection. "What is your chief objection to moving pictures?" "The dust that accumulates behind them."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Too Fond of His Own Goods. Mario Lloyd, the English music-hall star, had been deceiving at a dinner an actor whose career drink had ruined. "Yes," said Mario Lloyd, "he was a frightful drinker. POOL SHOTS WHICH TAKE NERVE TO EXECUTE. Upper left, Keough's great pool shot. Upper right, shot that won De Oro's first pool championship in 1888. Lower left, Werner's great shot which won him a tournament and many big wagers. Lower right, De Oro's shot which brought about the defeat of John Roberts, English champion, in New York in 1893.

New York, N. Y.—It takes nerve to execute the skilled shots in a pool tournament. To the spectator the work seems comparatively simple but the players are constantly under a nervous strain which cannot be appreciated.

Players know from experience that the proper execution of some shots depends on the steadiness of their nerves. Their brain is well trained as to how the shot should be made, but a slight tremor of their arm or hand due to nervousness is likely to bring about such bad manipulation with the cue that failure to score the shot is the result.

In all games there is an element of luck, but not so much in billiards and pool as one generally imagines. Alfred De Oro, who is probably the longest in the pool game as an expert, and who is still confident of holding his own with the younger generation of players, is now preparing to regain the title of the world's champion pool player, which he has defended several times and lost once.

The opponent in the match is to be Jerome Keough of Buffalo, present holder of the title, and the three night's contest will take place in New York November 28, 29 and 30.

He Spoke. "Speak to me," he pleaded, and looked into his deep brown eyes. "Speak to me," she repeated, and stroked his soft curly hair. And this he could not resist. "How-wow," he said.

Mixed Metaphor. At a service recently the preacher delivered an eloquent address on "Flowers as a Cure for Worry." "We are told," he said, "that more die from worry than from anything else—and yet they will go on worrying!"

Youth's Illusive Dreams. "When I was a youngster I wanted to be a pirate and sail the sea and make men tremble when I spoke." "Well, you do travel some." "Yes; but instead of making anybody tremble I'm thankful for a kind word from a customs officer."

His Objection. "What is your chief objection to moving pictures?" "The dust that accumulates behind them."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Too Fond of His Own Goods. Mario Lloyd, the English music-hall star, had been deceiving at a dinner an actor whose career drink had ruined. "Yes," said Mario Lloyd, "he was a frightful drinker. As hard a drinker, in fact, as an ancient York-shire tavern keeper on whose tomb is inscribed: 'He has lost his best customer.'"

Well Described. A little girl was walking quietly along the street with her mother when she espied a ferocious-looking but amiable bulldog approaching. With a little scream she clung to her mother, crying: "Oh, mother, quick, look at the dog with the tangled faces!"

Newspaper Advertising the Best. The newspaper is the best advertising medium, and the more we employ that and boycott the other the better for the community. Advertising devices and the bill-board are utterly hideous.—Prof. Zuellich, in a Lecture at Boston.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Nov. 21, 1870.—Jotham.—The county board supervisors have agreed to put into the tower of the court house a "book" of 1,200 pounds not, as is supposed, but of the city will furnish a clock. We don't suppose the city will agree to furnish a clock for a bell which would hardly be heard beyond out of the third ward. The bell on the Catholic church weighs 3,000 pounds and certain we need at least that much of metal for the court house clock.

The Northwestern Advance has discovered that the exact resolutions of the late M. E. Conference were not passed by that body and thinks all the ridicule the press has indulged in on that subject has been thrown away. We know at the time no decisive action was taken. They were referred to a committee to report at the next annual meeting.

From Monroe and Juda during the past week there has been shipped to Chicago and Milwaukee, fifty carloads of live stock.

There will be a sermon at Christ church on Thanksgiving at half past ten a. m. which will be made the occasion for an offering for the poor.

The rink will be open for skating about the fifth of next month.

Mr. Daniel Wilcox, formerly of this city, recently presented the Young Men's Christian Association with a lot of the Daily-Gazette, from 1870, and several months of the Janesville Free Press. Mr. Wilcox has the thanks of the Association.

The geese of the city are not in the least affected by the passage of the ordinance restricting their liberty. They still continue to run at large.

NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS

BROADHEAD.
Broadhead, Nov. 19.—The marriage of Wm. Earl Engelhardt and Miss Lola Hoffman is announced to take place next Thursday, November 24, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fawcett, at high noon, Rev. G. N. Foster of the M. E. church officiating.

Jacob Keller arrived home from Athol, South Dakota, on Thursday evening after a stay of some months.

Mrs. E. C. Stewart, A. Swan, A. Fuller and W. C. Martin were Janesville visitors on Friday.

Earl Engelhardt was here from Orfordville Friday morning.

Hon. John Luchaninger of Monroe made Broadhead a business call on Friday.

There was a joint meeting of Wesley W. Patton Post and Corps at the Post Hall on Friday evening, at which time a fine program was rendered by the members of the corps.

Mrs. C. P. Dickey and granddaughter, Miss Hazel Parker, and Miss Helen Pappie and Virginia Hinton attended the chicken pie supper at Orfordville Friday evening given by the Ladies' Cemetery Association.

Miss Grace Douglas went to Janesville on Friday afternoon to visit relatives.

The social in the M. E. Church Friday evening given by Mrs. Geler's Sunday School class of girls was a most successful affair. A large audience was present and all enjoyed the recitations and music by the girls as well as the phonograph music furnished by Mr. Levi Taylor.

Messrs. George and Clinton Pierce are in Madison today to attend the big football game.

RIGHT ARM FRACTURED IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.
Mrs. August Kleinmuth Sustained a Painful Injury When Her Horse Frightened at Road Roller.

Evansville, Nov. 21.—Mrs. August Kleinmuth had her right arm fractured at the elbow a few days ago in a run away. She had been to Evansville and was returning to her home in the country when her horse became frightened at a road roller and started to run at a wild pace. She was

ALL STOMACH TROUBLE VANISHES AFTER TAKING A LITTLE DIAPEPSIN

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn, Headache and other Distress will go in Five Minutes.

If you had some Diapepsin handy and would take a little now your stomach distress or indigestion would vanish in five minutes and you would feel fine.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome sour, out-of-order stomach before you realize it.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and besides there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drug store waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disturbance.

Making the World Better.

We did not make the world, and are not responsible for its state; but we can make life a fine art and, taking things as we find them, like wise men mold them as may best serve our own ends.—John Inglesant.

As He Understood It.

Woman and Her Back.

In Henry Bardeley's novel "Ervand" there is a discovery about the expression of the emotions which even Darwin forgot to record. It is to the effect that woman chiefly uses her back to convey her sentiments. And, indeed, any close observer of the human comedy can hardly fail to notice that does a woman wish to annihilate a rival and cast despair into the soul of a lover she simply turns an expressive back upon them. No tears, no wrath, no indignation, can vie with this maneuver, which has, too, the advantage of being noncommittal, for no one, in the current jargon, can "give herself away" with her back. The expression of the emotions by this part of the anatomy is denied, if a trifle limited. When a woman cries she is too apt to make a deplorable grimace. Does she get angry, her face will assume an unbecoming red. Very few understand the use of the gesture of the hands and arms. That is why woman, with her primordial instinctive wisdom, uses her back, especially when it is beautiful, as one of the chief weapons in the eternally diverting war of the sexes.

Toward the Pole.

Ice eight feet thick on the ocean and snow falling even in summer—such is the weather experienced in the polar regions. When the air is dry and still it is remarkable how low a temperature can be borne with ease. One explorer tells us that with the thermometer at 9 degrees it was too warm for skating. The summer weather in this region is, moreover, in some respects pleasant and healthful. Within the arctic zone there are wonderfully colored sunrises and sunsets to be seen. They are both brilliant and impressive, says a writer in the Penny Pictorial. But the nights—the nights are monotonous and repelling, a rigid world buried in everlasting snow, silent save for the cracking of the ice or the wail of the wind. Travelers in these regions experience many discomforts. The keen air causes their skin to burn and blister, while their lips swell and crack. Thirst, again, has been much complained of, arising from the action of the low temperature on the warm body.

Laborers Ended.

"For 20 years I've been fighting for a principle in this town and I'm discouraged," "The people won't have it, eh?" "They've decided to adopt it and I sh— have no excuse, after this, to keep on fighting."

Austrian Women Barbers.

Women barbers are admitted to the Austrian army, but they are required to appreciate themselves for three years before they can go into business on their own account.

Dish Cloths

Cheese cloth, unbleached cotton and heavy linen crash make most satisfactory dish cloths. One trouble with dish cloths is that they are hard to keep sweet, but they can easily be kept in good condition by washing occasionally in lukewarm water to which has been added a tablespoonful of Gold Dust washing powder; then scald, rinse and hang in the sunshine and fresh air to dry.

Where kitchen utensils become burnt or very "sticky," pot rings are easier to use.

Too Familiar.

We do not deprecate a certain cheery chattiness of style in our journalists, but we think that the writer in a weekly paper who alludes to the king of Spain as "his royal nibe" errs possibly on the side of excessive clumsiness.—London Globe.

Naught Without Work.

He that hath a trade hath an estate, and he that hath a calling hath an office of profit and honor; but then the trade must be worked at, and the calling followed, or neither the estate nor the office will enable us to pay our taxes.—Benjamin Franklin.

Warning of Earthquakes.

Working on the theory that earthquakes are preceded by an electromagnetic disturbance, an Italian scientist has devised an instrument which gives warning that an earthquake is about to occur a few minutes before the disturbance is felt.
